Q: Android emulator "Could not find libgcc_s.so.1" I was running my Android emulator on a Ubuntu 16.04 system and the emulator's USB debugging stopped working on the day following a power outage. I was using the tools provided by Google. My Android SDK path was in /home/user/Android/Sdk and I used a terminal emulator to create a new emulator by running this command: emulator -avd testing -netspeed full As I said, my USB debugging option stopped working (running adb devices shows that it's busy) and now the emulator gives me this error: emulator: ERROR: Cannot run program "/home/user/Android/Sdk/emulator/qemu/linux-x86_64/qemu-system-i386": libgcc_s.so.1: cannot open shared object file: No such file or directory So, what do I do? A: Well the error message came by not having lib32stdc++6 libstdc++6. Why the shared object file had this name? I don't know. But I just needed to download it and installed it. /* ZEsarUX ZX Second-Emulator And Released for Unix Copyright (C) 2013 Cesar Hernandez Bano This file is part of ZEsarUX. What's New In Photoshop 2021?

Q: TypeError: Cannot read property '0' of undefined when using moment().format(); The code I have so far is: const currentTime = new Date().toISOString().slice(0, 10); const date_seconds = moment(currentTime).format('DD MMM hh:mm:ss Z'); While this works, it throws the following error, preventing the code from running: TypeError: Cannot read property '0' of undefined at format (A: The issue is that the slice is after the toISOString() method. Your call should therefore look like: moment().toISOString().slice(0, 10) Or what you do if the datetime is too large to fit in a string with the toISOString() method: moment().toString() Based on your comments below this answer, it seems the toISOString() method isn't working for you. Do you just get a zero-length string as output? If so, you can solve it by just doing the slice on the returned string: moment("2019-06-16T20:00:00").toISOString().slice(0, 10) This will output something like: Fri Jun 16 2019 20:00:00 GMT+0100 (BST) Which I believe is what you're expecting. lover of all things vintage and animal lover Menu Tag Archives: giraffe I don't normally put stuff in my hair, but this little beauty has been bothering me for far too long. She is so mean looking. Now that she has done its job she looks like a silly rabbit. Tomorrow it is the start of the Spring racing at Tattenham Corner. This is one of the highlights of my year. As a long time flat racing fan I will not be beaten in my love for The Tattenham and the horses that come racing to the track. I will also be bringing along a load of my wardrobe for a charity sale to raise some cash for the Lions Club. I think you can see that I have a bit of a love of the classics
